Long illness ends 15-month reign as Soviet head

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — President Yuri V. Andropov is dead after only 16 months in power. His rule began with promises of change and ended with the former KGB chief trying to govern a superpower from his sickbed.

As Soviets hung out mourning flags Friday, the rest of the world awaited word on who would assume the Kremlin helm in this time of heightened U.S.-Soviet tensions.

The government announced at 2:20 p.m. (4:20 a.m. MST) Friday that the 69-year-old Andropov

"staunch fighter for the ideals of communism and for peace," had died 22 hours earlier, at 4:50 p.m. Thursday (6:50 a.m. MST).

For months the president and Communist Party general secretary had been seriously ill with diabetes, kidney and circulatory problems. An official announcement said he died of "heart and vascular insufficiency."

During his absence from public view, the only official word on his illness was in November when Soviet officials said he had a "cold." And other Soviets predicted several times that Andropov would resume his public duties soon.

The official Tass news agency announced

Andropov would be buried Tuesday in Red Square, and said party ideologist Konstantin Chernenko would head the funeral commission.

There was no official word on when the party Central Committee would meet to rally a successor chosen by the 12 surviving members of the ruling Politburo.

Party officials worked into the night Friday, their office buildings ablaze with light as darkness and snow fell on the Soviet capital. Workers hung black-trimmed hammer-and-sickle flags from public buildings.

MOSCOW — A successor to Yuri V. Andropov is almost certain to be one of 12 senior members of the ruling Politburo.

Unless a transition leadership emerges, Mikhail S. Gorbachev, and Gligory V. Romanov as younger members are seen as strong candidates to head the Communist Party.

Senior Politburo member Konstantin U. Chernenko, 72, was appointed to head the funeral commission, however, and in the past the person given that responsibility emerged as the party's new general secretary.

His selection would leave the Soviet Union again with an elderly man in the top job and no certainty of long-term continuity.

Gorbachev, Romanov and Chernenko are the three Politburo members who belong to the Communist Party.

U.S. sends condolences, waits for leader to emerge

By R. GREGORY NOKES
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz expressed their personal condolences Friday over the death of Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov and voiced hope the new Moscow leadership will join the United States in striving "to make the world a safer place."

There is a reasonable opportunity for some substantive accomplishment."

Vice President George Bush was designated to represent the United States at Andropov's funeral in Moscow on Tuesday. Bush and Shultz were the U.S. representatives at the funeral of Leonid Brezhnev, Andropov's predecessor, in November, 1982.

Asked whether Bush might carry a message proposing a summit meeting with a new Soviet leader sometime in the future, a senior administration official said "that sort of speculation is sort of premature."

noted that there is as yet no leadership in the Kremlin and the official questioned to whom Bush might propose a summit.

Deputy White House press secretary Bob Sims said that "it's way too early to be talking about something like that (a summit)." But, he added, "If something transpires that would allow him to get better acquainted" with the new Soviet leader, "it's not out of the question."

Reagan, who was awakened in the middle of the night to be told of Andropov's death at age 69 following a long illness, decided against going to BEIRUT, Lebanon — Israeli jets struck targets in Syrian-controlled central Lebanon Friday, and Lebanese soldiers traded fire with Moslem militiamen in Beirut.

More than 850 American and other foreign civilians evacuated the war-torn city in helicopters.

Lebanese sources said President Amin Gemayel was moving to cancel the May 17 troop-withdrawal agreement with Israel in an effort to satisfy his Syrian-backed opponents and end an eight-day old civil war flareup that police say has killed more than 400 people.

Beirut and exacerbated shortages of fuel and electricity.

As the helicopter evacuation of civilians began on west Beirut's seafloor, many Americans and Europeans waiting in line said fear was driving them from Lebanon. Many also said they planned to return when conditions calmed.

"I'll be back in the fall," promised Elizabeth Norton of New Orleans, La., who had a baby Monday night during a shelling attack. Carrying her newborn daughter, Nadia, strapped to her chest in a red corduroy sling, she described her departure as "an early vacation."

The Israeli jets struck near Bhamdoun, 14 miles east of Beirut. Military sources in Israel said the targets were bases of Syrian-backed Palestinian guerrillas, and that two buildings and several pieces of artillery were destroyed.

Israel radio said Israeli tanks and armored personnel carriers moved to within about eight miles of Beirut, to the bridge at Damour, then pulled back.

Sniping and rocket exchanges continued along the "green line" dividing Christian east and predominantly Moslem west Beirut, which Moslem militias captured from the Lebanese army early in the week. The fighting, along with shelling attacks south of the city, continued to isolate west

She said her husband, Michael, a teacher at the American University of Beirut, was staying behind.

The U.S. CH-46 Seahawk helicopters made 29 trips carrying evacuees between shore and the warships USS Trenton and USS Mantoway. The evacuees eventually will sail for Cyprus.

U.S. Embassy spokesman John Stewart said 410 people were evacuated from Beirut and 102 others from Jounieh, on the coast 12 miles south of the capital, on Friday. He said most were Americans citizens, but some were Japanese, North Korean, Egyptian, Norwegian and Greek.

He said the evacuation would resume this morning and continue until noon.

House ranks power plant rights beneath other water uses

By BOB FICK
The Associated Press

BOISE — The Idaho House, torn between fears of stagnating future development and skyrocketing electric rates, has narrowly approved legislation subjugating power company rights to river water to those of other water users.

"This is a bill that looks to the future," Rep. Vard Chaburn, R-Albion, said Friday in mustering a 38-31 vote behind the bill that was earlier endorsed by his Resources and Conservation Committee.

The bill, which now goes to the Senate, was the centerpiece in the decade-old legal battle over control of the state's water that erupted into full public debate after the Idaho Supreme Court ruled in late 1982 that Idaho Power Co.'s right to Snake River water at its southwest Swan Falls hydroelectric dam takes priority over the rights of other upstream users, mostly agricultural interests.

There is not enough water flowing through the river to meet all the demands that could be made for water from all the users claiming valid use permits.

"No conglomeration in this country has the right to control the blood of this state," said Rep. Mel Hammond, D-Rexburg.

The House legislation is a direct attempt to override that decision and, as its supporters claimed, restore control over water rights and development to the elected leaders of the state, not the officials of private utility companies.

"Idaho Power is not the water master of this state," Hammond said during the more than two-hours of intense debate. "The water belongs to all of us. All we're doing is putting it back where it belongs."

Critics called the proposal a bad precedent in unsuccessfully urging their colleagues to stay out of the complex legal debate that will ultimately be settled by the courts no matter what the state does.

"Let the courts decide," said Rep. Rachel Gilbert, R-Boise. "The courts will decide whether we pass this bill or not."

That court battle is expected to cost the state millions of dollars over the next several years.

She and others warned of huge rate increases for utility consumers, possibly as high as $50 million a year, if Idaho Power is forced to give up its primary right to river water for generation.

Backers of the legislation, while admitting the potential for some increase in rates, said the amount is being overblown. They also said rate increases will come even without the legislation just as they have in the past.

The legislation has the backing of Democratic Gov. John Evans and Evans has said he will not sign that measure until the subordination bill is on his desk as well.

Critics of the subordination bill argued that because it has no provisions to compensate Idaho Power for the loss of water rights, the courts could easily void it, thereby only intensifying the already heated battle over Snake River water. Even if it is upheld, they said the state would still be liable for compensating Idaho Power to the tune of as much as $50 million a year.

Leaders regretful of Andropov's death

By MARCUS ELIASON
The Associated Press

The death of Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov evoked formal expressions of regret from leaders around the world Friday, along with hopes that the end of the Soviet Union might renew East-West detente.

From Japan to West Europe to Central America, Andropov was eulogized as "a statesman of high stature" and "a man of vision." The general assessment, however, was that his tenure was too short to leave a lasting impression.

Because of his relatively brief 15-month term as Soviet leader and his long illness, Andropov established few close personal relationships with policy makers in other nations. It was reflected in the lack of emotion in many leaders' statements.

French President Francois Mitterrand said Andropov "could have been a stabilizing factor. He was a man of great authority with a deep knowledge of many issues."

"It is sad that his activities were cut short by illness and death when they had only just begun," Mitterrand told reporters. But he added: "I have no reason to believe that his death will lead to problems."

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said he planned to attend Andropov's funeral. "The extensive talks I held with the deceased in Moscow in July 1983 will remain in my mind as an important contribution for the necessary continuation of political dialogue between East and West, also in difficult times," he said.

Willy Brandt, West Germany's former chancellor and initiator of detente in the early 1970s, praised Andropov for showing awareness of his "responsibility for world peace," and said he hoped "no period of uncertainty arises" about future Soviet policy.

Italy's Socialist premier, Bettino Craxi, said the death came at "a particularly difficult moment" for international relations. In a telegram to the Kremlin, he said the times called for "the greatest effort of reciprocal understanding for the prompt resumption of a real and efficient dialogue of peace and collaboration."

In Britain, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher also made known her regret at Andropov's death, and there was speculation she might attend the funeral in the hope of meeting the Kremlin leader.

"It is sad that his activities were cut short by illness and death when they had only just begun," Mitterrand told reporters. But he added: "I have no reason to believe that his death will lead to problems."

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said he planned to attend Andropov's funeral. "The and New York were lowered, and the U.N. banner was flown at half-staff. U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar expressed condolences in a message to the Soviet leadership and said: "Having had the privilege of meeting and holding detailed talks with President Andropov during 1983, I could not fail to be impressed by his fervent commitment to work for world peace and an end to the arms race."

In the Soviet Union and allied East European countries, somber music filled the officially controlled airwaves. In the U.S.S.R., rallies in Czechoslovakia, one of the most loyal Soviet allies, were festooned with black banners.

The Bulgarian official news agency BTA said, "The news about the death... threw the Bulgarian people into deep grief and sorrow."

But there were some smiles and sardonic comments among citizens in Poland. "I'm glad he is dead," said one mustacheed Polish worker without elaboration.

A group of four youths rushed to a liquor store to buy cherry brandy, and chatted merrily. "We were afraid they would receive any of mourning and close the liquor store," one said.

Nobel Peace Prize laureate Leah Waleis, founder of the Solidarity workers' movement, said, "As a good Christian I say, 'May he rest in peace.' That is all I have to say."

Salvador study critical

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a four-year siege by left-wing guerrillas, the rightist death squads re-emerged in El Salvador last year and the nation's "historically weak and ineffective" justice system was near collapse, the State Department said Friday in its annual human rights report.

But the 1,464-page report concludes that major human rights improvements were made in Latin America during 1983 as a number of military governments — notably Argentina — moved towards democracy.

Elliot Abrams, assistant secretary of state for human rights, told reporters that the "most disappointing event" of the year was the military coup in Nigeria that ousted a democratically elected government.

The report labeled Iran as the world's worst human rights abuser, and Abrams said that is justified by Iran's attempt to stamp out followers of the Bahai sect by "criminalizing an entire faith."

In a briefing, Abrams pointed to an "accelerating trend" to democracy in Latin America which he said belies "the stereotyped image of a Latin America run entirely by dictators."

In El Salvador, however, human rights progress appeared marginal.

Soviets hail leader's effectiveness

By NANCY TRAVER
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — People gathered forlornly in small groups along the streets around the Kremlin Friday. They watched as Soviet workers placed blackrimmed flags on public buildings, and talked sadly about the death of Yuri V. Andropov.

Months ago, Soviets lost another leader, Leonid Brezhnev. "Just a little more than one year had passed and already he had done so much to instill order in our production and our services," one man huddling against the bitter winter wind and pulling his fur "shapka" tighter on his head.

"The announcement was very bad news for me because Andropov was such a businesslike man, and a strong-willed person," he said outside the huge Deistk Mir toy store that sits across Dzerzhinsky Square from the KGB headquarters, where Andropov spent 15 years as head of the secret police.

"Andropov was perceived by many in the West as a shadowy figure who had led a feared secret police and intelligence organization, but many Soviets apparently thought of him as a dedicated, efficient public servant."

People spoke of Andropov in reverential, hushed tones after the government officially announced Friday afternoon that he had died Thursday.

They also expressed shock that he had died only 15 months after being named general secretary of the Communist Party.

"His death is a pity and I regret it very much," one man said solemnly as he watched workers place the flags on the Communist Party Central Committee building not far from Red Square.

"The Soviet people need a leader like Andropov because his deeds didn't contradict his words and he worked to bring us together and make the country better," the man added.

One young woman said she would go to the tomb of V.I. Lenin on Red Square on Friday night to mourn Andropov.

"He worked too hard and died too much. He should have saved himself, but he had much he wanted to accomplish and sacrificed himself for the motherland," she said.

Around Moscow, workers began preparing for Andropov's funeral on Tuesday, which will draw leaders from all over the world. The evening television news also showed mourning meetings in Minsk and other cities around the Soviet Union.

Chinese demanding improved food

PEKING (AP) — China's consumer boom outraced production in 1983 as people demanded more and better food, clothing and durable goods, a government official said Friday in a review of the year.

"At present, many people are demanding new commodities of greater variety and quality," Xu Gang, deputy director of the State Statistical Bureau, told a news conference.

Consumer goods are piling up on the shelves — a new phenomenon in China — while "superior brands" of high quality are underproduced, Xu said.

He also reported that "consumption increased at a higher rate than demanded, and that production could not keep pace with demand.

Xu's words underlined evidence visible from the bustling streets of Canton to the farming heartland of China; people are spending their increased earnings on washing machines, color TVs, refrigerators and stereos.

Xu also gave preliminary figures which said China had a 1983 foreign trade surplus of $1 billion.

Exports totaled $22.3 billion, up 6.3 percent over 1982, and imports reached $21.3 billion, up 17.6 percent.

Xu said China's greater agricultural self-sufficiency was the reason for declines of 19.6 percent, 51.1 percent and 38.4 percent in imports of grain, cotton and edible oil, respectively.

Leader claims rivers tainted

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Son Sann, a top Cambodian resistance leader, claimed Friday that Vietnamese troops recently have poisoned rivers and lakes in northwestern Cambodia to "exterminate" Cambodian civilians and rebel guerrillas.

He said the waters in various parts of the northwestern provinces of Kratie, Kampong Speu, Battambang and Slem Reap have been so badly contaminated by the unknown poison that they have spawned disease and dying fish.

In a statement read at a news conference, Son Sann said Cambodians in the Thmar Kbal and Mongkolborei areas of Battambang "fell very ill" after eating the contaminated fish.

He said his Khmer People's National Liberation Front had received the reports in the past three months from "numerous sources" in many areas of Cambodia, including civilians and guerrillas.

Communist Vietnam, which installed the Cambodian government after Vietnamese forces invaded the country in 1978, has strongly denied all such previous allegations.

A diplomat involved in investigating claims of Vietnam's alleged use of Soviet-supplied chemical weapons and poison gases against insurgents in Laos and Cambodia said he had no independent knowledge of any current campaign.

He would not comment on whether the claims were credible.

The Cambodian resistance, Thai government and Western nations including the United States have accused the Vietnamese of using chemical weapons since the late 1970s, but no indisputable evidence has been unearthed.

Son Sann presented no evidence of his claims.

Previous allegations have been that the Vietnamese used shells containing poisonous gases or sent low-flying planes to shower a "yellow rain" of poisons onto people on the ground.

Son Sann speculated that the Vietnamese are experimenting with new poisons or trying to kill resistance fighters deep in Cambodia who must rely on water supplies from ponds during the current dry season.

He said he did not know how or in what form the Vietnamese were introducing the poisons into the water.

Astronauts wind up Challenger mission

CAPRI CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger's astronauts stowed gear Friday and got ready to swing up the great Florida space shuttle with a dawn landing on one of the world's longest paved runways. An alert was in effect on the strip: watch out for wild pigs and alligators.

The shuttle was scheduled to land at the Kennedy Space Center at 5:16 a.m. MST. Challenger's 17th mission, STS-51-L, was the first to cross the Pacific Ocean west of Australia, its supersonic glide taking it across Baja California and a bit of Texas, south of Houston and across the delta south of New Orleans.

The touchdown on Runway 15, a 15,000-foot strip of concrete, put the shuttle just four miles from the launch pad where it began its voyage on Feb. 3. The last preparation that was made for the event was an anxious search of the runway for alligators and wild pigs, which abound in the area.

"If you hit an alligator or anything else with the orbiter, you would probably destroy the landing gear," said NASA's Bill Williams. "It's designed for an orbiter landing, not anything else."

The Florida Wildlife Commission was standing by to take care of any stray animals. The space center is part of a wildlife refuge and is populated, too, with bobcats and foxes.

During a Friday news conference, commander Vance Brand said that Bruce McCandless and Robert Stewart, who made history's first untethered space walks during the mission, were calling themselves Flash Gordon and Buck Rogers, after the comic strip characters. Who was Flash and who Buck, he didn't say.

But eight hours later, Brand confided to Mission Control that Bob Stewart was "Flash," and Bruce McCandless was "Buck."

"We've had a really useful, we've had a really productive mission in spite of the failures and minor setbacks that we have undergone," said astronaut Ronald McNair.

Brand said the crew was disappointed about the major failures of the 10th shuttle flight: two $75 million satellites that were supposed to climb to 22,300 miles but didn't; a $150,000 tracking balloon that burst; and the $100 million robot arm that didn't work when it was supposed to rotate a docking device.

But, he said, the two spectacular spacewalks were the highlight. "I think we've been on top of the world since they came off because those were very exciting things to pull off up here," Brand said. "I think we feel there's been some adversity, but a lot has been accomplished."

Inflation on rise, but experts say don't worry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Skyrocketing food costs sent wholesale prices soaring 0.6 percent in January, the biggest gain in 14 months, the government reported Friday.

But the Reagan administration and economists shrugged off the results as temporary, saying the sharp winter weather and the start of another round of high inflation.

Higher costs for pork, beef and vegetable oils contributed to the stunning

2.7 percent jump in food prices last month, the sharpest one-month rise since August 1981.

Energy prices tumbled 1.2 percent, the sixth decline in seven months and the biggest drop since last April, the Labor Department said in its new report on the Producer Price Index for finished goods. Those prices, though, reflected December activity, and analysts predicted higher home heating oil costs would reverse that trend in the coming months.

Donald Ratajczak, economic forecaster at Georgia State University, warned that consumers would have "a couple of months of difficulty at the grocery store and (with their) utility bills."

Still, he, like other analysts, expected the sharp price pickup to last only a few months before moderating.

"It's nothing to get upset about. It's a one- to two-month blip," said Edward Yarden, chief economist for Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. in New York.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., where President Reagan was vacationing, his spokesman, Larry Speakes, attributed the increase mainly to the effect of bad weather on food supplies and said "the underlying causes of inflation are still under control."

"The increase, he said, 'comes on the heels of 12 to 14 months in which we made enormous gains in controlling inflation.... We believe these weather-related increases in January will not dampen the over-all progress made last year.'

Laxalt: Pull Marines

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The Marines should "get out of Lebanon as quickly as possible," and even the shab lying in the Mediterranean off Lebanon "may not be safe enough" for the U.S. servicemen, says the architect of President Reagan's re-election campaign.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., said in an interview with The Associated Press Thursday night — that the lesson the United States should learn from Lebanon is "that hereafter we think not once or twice but several times about ever putting an American military person on the ground in the Middle East."

Laxalt, a confidant of Reagan since he served as governor of Nevada while Reagan was governor of California in the late 1960s, said he wasn't speaking for the president.

"I constantly have this problem of what I say being translated into what the president is saying," said

Laxalt, who also headed Reagan's election campaign in 1980 and his bid to wrest the Republican nomination from President Gerald Ford in 1976.

Reagan announced Tuesday that U.S. forces in Lebanon will be redeployed to ships offshore, but a timetable has not been announced.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., meanwhile, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger gave Reagan a proposed timetable for withdrawal of Marines from Beirut. Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes gave no details of the proposal, and said a final decision would not be made before the Lebanese government and other governments involved in the multinational force are consulted.

The Marines should "get out of Lebanon as quickly as possible because their mission is almost completely frustrated, and the ships may not be safe enough for them," Laxalt said.

Farmers guilty in slave case

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A farm family was convicted in federal court Friday of keeping two mentally retarded farmhands as slaves for at least 11 years, forbidding the workers to leave the farm or have contact with other people.

Keo Kozinski, 62, his wife, Margaret, 54, and son, John, 30, all of Chelsea in Washtenaw County, were found guilty of one count of conspiracy to violate the rights of Robert Palmer, 57, and Louis Molitoris, 60.

The Kozinskis and his wife also were convicted of two counts of involuntary servitude. Witnesses testified during the weeklong trial that Palmer and Molitoris worked from before dawn until after dusk each day, were un- paid, physically and verbally abused and forced to live in a dilapidated trailer without running water.

Harsh weather rips nation

By The Associated Press

A blustery storm dropped more than a foot of snow in parts of the Rockies on Friday while blinding fog enveloped the middle of America from Minnesota to Louisiana, disrupting travel on land and in the air.

Winds gusting to 67 mph knocked out the power to thousands of homes in Las Vegas, Nev., and snow accumulated as fast as 2 inches an hour in parts of Utah.

Dixie, hail the size of golfballs clattered — on — rooftops — in northern Louisiana and southern Arizona.

The dense fog in Minnesota forced schools to open late, temporarily closed the Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport and caused smashups on the highways.

Three tractor-trailer trucks and four cars were involved in one chain-reaction pileup on Interstate 94 near Monticello, Minn. Two people suffered minor injuries. Part of the freeway had to be closed for a time while the wreckage was cleared.

Area schools close as snow drifts pile high

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Many schools in Magic Valley closed early Friday, to get students home over rural roads that were drifting closed.

Friday's snowstorm also closed Interstate 84, between the Coterrel port of entry and the Salt Lake interchange, because of drifting and poor visibility.

State highway officials at Shoshone said the Interstate was closed about 2 p.m.

Elsewhere, a district highway spokesman said snowplows were working "in all directions."

At one point, six accidents were reported at the same time on I-84, between Coterrel and the Salt Lake interchange.

One involved injuries, and the Idaho State Police was sending back-up officers to assist these working in a blinding blizzard.

Officers said there was a pileup of vehicles on I-84, as well as numerous stranded motorists, and traffic was being held back from both the north and south.

All other major highways were reported open Friday afternoon, although an ISP officer in Twin Falls reported that U.S. 93 south to the Nevada line was drifting.

City and county officers throughout the Magic Valley reported traffic accidents too numerous to count, but they said there were relatively few injuries, and those were minor.

In addition to drifting streets and county roads were snow-covered and slick.

The Twin Falls sheriff's office received 27 accident and slide-off calls during the day.

and Twin Falls police listed 18 on its blotter. Floyd Dayley, Twin Falls Highway District manager, said the north-south rural roads in the county were drifting, and plows were working in the Bell Rapids and Magic Water areas, and around Hollister, Rogerson, Kimberly and Hansen.

Twin Falls school officials, after consulting with highway officials and the sheriff's office, decided to keep schools open until the regular closing time, since plows had covered most of the problem areas.

Elsewhere, however, students went home about mid-day, and a number of sports events were canceled Friday night.

Elementary schools did not open Friday. Buhl and Castleford opened and then closed about 1:30 p.m.

Schools in Kimberly closed at noon and at 2:15 p.m. In Hansen, Gooding school officials sent their students home at 1 p.m., and Shoshone closed earlier in the day.

Jerome closed its schools at noon, and the Valley district did likewise at 1:30 p.m.

In Minidoka County, Superintendent Floyd Merrill said students were sent home at 10 a.m. The district covers all of the county, with long stretches of open country for buses to travel.

Merrill said the winds, estimated at about 25 mph in town, were stronger in the outlying areas. Roads north of Rupert and in the Paul area were especially bad, he said.

"We had a hard time getting buses through this morning," Merrill said. "We had farmers with tractors and snowplow crews helping, and at that, five of the buses weren't back in until after noon. It took them two-and-a-half hours, about twice the time it usually takes to get around the routes."

Merrill said there were only about three to four inches of snow, but the drifts were three-and-a-half feet high in many areas.

In Blaine County, where the roads were no open than snow-covered, the schools were not open. School officials there said no wind problems were evident and the weather was nice.

Bill Galikin, of the U.S. Weather Service station at Kimberly, said most areas of the Magic Valley received between three and four inches of snow, with more falling in higher elevations.

Galikin said today should be nice, with slowly subsiding winds and partly cloudy skies. The sun should come through at times, but temperatures are expected to drop back to the teens.

Student 'devours' books

Laotian reads 210

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Every afternoon before Khoun Sengvanpheng leaves school, she stops by the library for a new book.

So far this year, she has read 210 books, far more than any other student in Linda Smith's second-grade classroom at Lincoln Elementary School in Twin Falls.

Reading that many books — and they were difficult books, Khoun and her teacher agree — would be an accomplishment for any child. But Khoun has been in the United States for less than three years.

She could speak almost no English when she started kindergarten, her teacher says. But by the beginning of this year, she could speak the language well and read at the second-grade level.

Now, she reads as well as most students well in the third grade, Smith says.

Not only has Khoun picked up the language, she also seems to have picked up American culture. Her favorite book was "Bedrock Superhero," a story combining two American institutions — football and Saturday-morning cartoons.

"It was a funny book," Khoun says with a grin.

In fact, it was better than watching television, she says. "I read a book because in the book it tells lots of things" television does not.

She's not the only one in her Laotian-immigrant family to value reading.

"My Dad likes people who read books. He likes me to read all these books," Khoun says, adding that her father knows little English and his eyesight is too poor to read.

On Friday, she said she planned to choose a book about valentines, or maybe ghosts, to read this weekend.

"If I could, I would take home seven books tonight," she said wistfully. But she says the librarian only allows one book to go home at a time.

With a voracious appetite for books, Khoun Sengvanpheng likes reading more than TV.

Still, she is reading enough books to finish 300 by the end of the year, she guesses. Make that 400, her teacher says.

Either way, the library may have to buy more books, Khoun confides. She's already read most of the easy books and is making good headway on the difficult ones, she says.

But why spend all that time reading when she could be watching television or learning to skateboard?

Well, it's great entertainment, Khoun says. And she learns lots of new words. But also, she's happy to do something better than her classmates who have not had to learn a new culture in their seven years.

"I like to read more," she says, grinning. "I like to beat them."

Young man killed by fire

TWIN FALLS — A 21-year-old Twin Falls man who was sleeping in a wooden shed behind a Brackett Street residence died early Friday morning when the structure caught fire.

The victim has been identified as Troy Quint Jacobsen, of 179 Brackett St. N., according to Claver Edwards, the Twin Falls County coroner. The cause of death was smoke inhalation.

Jacobsen was pronounced dead at 4:30 a.m. at the scene.

Although the exact cause of the fire still is unknown, investigators believe that Jacobsen was sleeping in the shed and may have tried to light a lantern to keep warm, according to Lt. Jim Kistler of the Twin Falls Police Department. What happened after that, "I don't know," he said.

Kistler would not say why Jacobsen was staying in the building.

Bobby Bopp, the Twin Falls fire chief, said the fire probably was an accident.

The small storage shed was located behind a house occupied by Jacobsen's parents, Kistler said. They were home at the time of the fire.

At 2:35 a.m., an alarm was called in from the fire department, Bopp said. While the engines were on route, firefighters were informed by radio that there was a person in the building. Upon arrival, they found the shed engulfed by flames, Bopp said. The fire was extinguished in a short time.

Jacobsen's body was found on the floor, Edwards said.

The case is under investigation by the fire and police departments. The shed was destroyed.

Armed thieves hit for a second time

TWIN FALLS — For the second time this week, armed robbers have struck in Twin Falls.

"An undetermined amount of money was taken Friday night from a Budget grocery in the Blue Lakes Mall. Two men entered the busy supermarket at 6:54 p.m. and ordered workers to open the safe.

Police Chief Tim Qualls said there appears to be no connection between the Friday night robbery and the one Wednesday night, at the Mr. Gas service station, off Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

The two men who robbed the supermarket were estimated to be between 30 to 35, both were about six feet tall. They were not wearing masks, Qualls said. Only one weapon, a handgun, was displayed, he said.

No vehicle was observed Friday night. The two suspects reportedly ran from the store toward Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

There were a number of customers in the store at the time, but Qualls said no one was hurt, and the customers are not aware of the robbery, since it occurred in the office area, just beyond the checkout stands.

Roadblocks were set up on major roads and highways by city, county and state officers, but they were called off shortly after 8 p.m.

On Wednesday, two armed young men wearing ski masks robbed the attendant and two customers at the Mr. Gas station. Less than $300 was taken in that robbery, according to Qualls.

A vehicle suspected of being involved in Wednesday's robbery is being held in police custody. It was found abandoned in Twin Falls the same day as the robbery, and the owner has reported it stolen, officers say.

MVRS money raiser nets about $16,000

By PAT MARCANTONE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The director of Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services is pleased with the progress of the agency's 1983-84 fund-raising drive, although one part of the campaign seems to have come up dry.

MVRS has raised about $16,000 through a corporation and direct-mail appeal, and a Christmas meat package sale.

The direct-mail campaign, which ran from late September to the end of December, netted $5,400. That was $400 more than the goal set for this part of the drive. More than 150 persons were solicited in the appeal.

This is the second year we have implemented this type of fund-raising strategy," says Jeff Crumrine, the executive director. "Last year, our expenses were greater than the revenues, which is not unusual. We did, however, develop a list of potential contributors, which partially accounts for this year's success."

The organization was not as successful in its holiday sale of meat packages from the Falls Brand Co. MVRS raised $5,200; its goal was $6,000.

Crumrine says he was pleased, nevertheless, because the amount said greatly exceeded last year's sales of $1,500.

Collectors will ignore certain garbage barrels

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Trash cans that have been used as burning barrels will no longer be emptied by Wendell trash collectors.

Ron Fager, the owner of C and R Sanitation in Wendell, says an increasing number of residents have been burning their garbage, leaving smoldering metal cans and other material in their trash cans.

"We've had a rash of it here like you wouldn't believe," Fager told Wendell

City Council members Thursday night.

He said that smoldering trash, which is often unnoticed, has caused three major fires inside his garbage trucks in less than a year.

"It's tough. I don't know what to do," he said.

Compacted trash smolders, and when air hits it, "it's immediate fire," he said.

On Jan. 30, Fager said his two truck operators stopped at a gas station to buy some pop. When they saw smoke pouring from the nearly full truck, they immediately drove it across the street and dumped it on the asphalt of a church parking lot.

"When it hit the ground, it was flaming," Fager said. "If there had been something rather explosive in that truck ... and it had blown up with—Amprose's—fuel—pumps—right there, it would have taken that whole end of town."

The fire department was called, but no damage was reported, Fager said.

City Superintendent Charlie Doty, who collected the trash before Fager took over the job, said the collectors should carry fire extinguishers and watch closely, so smoldering trash will not be dumped into the truck.

"But like Fager said, sometimes you don't even know it," Doty said.

Mayor Otto Lemke said most people burn trash to reduce the amount of garbage, so their cans will not overflow.

Fager made a public request that residents put out more cans and stop burning.

Landowners to join buildable-site debate in Blaine County

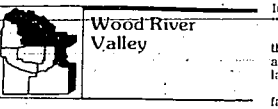

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

HAILY — Debate on redefining what is a buildable site in Blaine County will continue when more affected landowners can be notified of the possible changes.

An amendment under consideration by the county's Planning and Zoning Commission would affect land primarily along the Big Wood River, in an effort to reduce the hazard of flooding.

Thursday night was the second time the commission had studied the problem. But when it was discovered that the proposed amendment would affect more property than expected, the board decided to table discussion on the issue until more property owners can take part.

Portions of, or all of, some existing subdivisions are in the flood plain, Marideth Sander, the county planning administrator, said Thursday night.

The amendment would make several changes in the existing definition of suitable building sites.

It would be more restrictive when a parcel of land is only partially in a flood plain. In that case, the developer would have to place all buildings outside the flood area.

In that case, all building sites must be "accessible" at times of high water.

Commission Chairman Nick Purdy said the reason for allowing parcels completely in a flood plain to be built upon is to allow a landowner his right to develop his property.

However, Purdy said the change would be far-reaching for developers, and he called it a "weasel clause," which would allow development where otherwise it would be restricted.

The original intent of the definition, he said, was to keep buildings out of the flood plain, but it has not worked out that way and a more comprehensive definition is needed, he said.

The existing definition has three requirements for a buildable site: • It will not require diking or rip rapping to protect against flooding.

• It will not increase the possibility of contamination of ground- or surface water from septic tanks and drain fields.

• It will not require excavation that will steepen a slope or the toe of a slope.

The definition being considered would make several other changes. A building site would have to meet the following criteria:

• It would not create or be affected by a "substantial" flood hazard.

• It would not need diking or rip rapping to prevent erosion, as well as flooding.

The plan encourages developers to transfer densities out of hazardous areas. However, Forstmann said if the owner of a large parcel had only a small portion of land outside the flood plain, then the resulting building density may be high and unacceptable once such a transfer is made.

"That's not a good solution," she said.

Commission member Ron Adams agreed. He suggested the definition should specify a certain percent of the parcel that would be outside the flood plain before all buildable sites must be transferred to high ground. However, no set percentage was discussed.

The planning commission will continue its debate at a later date and will pass its recommendation on to the county commissioners for final approval.

In the meantime, an effort to contact all landowners along the river will be made.

Three vehicles collide on ice

TWIN FALLS — A three-car accident resulted in one injury Friday morning, a fourth-mile west of Twin Falls, on South Park Avenue.

One of the drivers, 40-year-old Joyce M. Wallen of Twin Falls, was reported in fair condition Friday evening at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

The accident occurred at about 8:20 a.m., when Wallen was driving her compact car east on the icy road, according to Wayne Tousey, a Twin Falls County sheriff's deputy. Wallen's vehicle went out of control, crossed the lane and slammed broadside into a westbound semi, driven by 25-year-old Lonnie Wright of Buhl. After that collision, the semi skidded and collided with a car driven by 29-year-old Valerie Messman of Twin Falls. Messman was driving behind Wallen.

Messman's and Wallen's vehicles were damaged. There was about $1,000 damage to the semi, which was owned by Blick Trucking of Castleford, Tousey said.

Semi driver is pinned in wreck

TWIN FALLS — A semi pulling two trailers wrecked on its side Thursday night and pinned the driver inside.

The accident happened on Interstate 84, one mile east of the U.S. 93 intersection.

The driver, 49-year-old Deloy Henry Norton of Sandy, Utah, was reported in stable condition Friday at St. Benedict's Family Medical Center in Jerome.

At about 9:45 p.m., Norton's truck jackknifed on the icy road and went into the median, where it rolled on its side, according to an Idaho State Police officer. The driver was pinned inside for about 30 minutes.

The truck and trailers, which were empty, were owned by Garrett Freight Lines. There was no estimate of damage.

Stolen checks lead to arrests

BURLEY — Two men have been arrested for allegedly passing stolen checks last month in Burley.

Freddie Lopez, 21, of Burley, was arrested Thursday in Burley and charged with grand theft for obtaining money under false pretenses, according to a Burley police report. Lopez has been arraigned and released on his own recognizance.

In connection with the same incident, Pete Ramirez Curial, 19, of Burley, was charged Wednesday with attempting to pass forged documents. Curial is being held in the Cassia County Jail, in lieu of $5,000 bond.

According to the report, the men allegedly used checks that were stolen from Ricardo Rendon of Burley. The number of checks or their amount was not available Friday.

Burley police say more arrests are anticipated in the case.

Wendell men face drug charges

GOODING — Two Wendell men were bound over to Fifth District Court on Thursday, following preliminary hearings on drug charges.

The Gooding County sheriff's office, Glenn Davls, 28, and Terrel Carmichael, 36, remained in the county jail Friday, in lieu of $50,000 bond each.

They were arrested in Wendell after a search warrant was issued Jan. 23. The arrests were made through a joint effort by Gooding County, Wendell city and Idaho Department of Law Enforcement officers, the sheriff's office said.

The two men have been charged with possession of marijuana in excess of three ounces, possession of a controlled substance with intent to sell and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Mishap puts four in hospital

TWIN FALLS — Four persons were injured Friday evening in a collision on Icy 84 Avenue East, just east of Twin Falls.

The accident was one of nearly 30 traffic mishaps and slide-offs reported Friday in Twin Falls County.

Cpl. Glen Schwartz, of Idaho State Police in Twin Falls, said a car driven by Jeanne Capps, 41, of Twin Falls, was eastbound on Falls Avenue when it skidded on ice and slid sideways into the path of a westbound pickup truck, driven by William Norton, 29, of Twin Falls.

Both drivers and their passengers — James Derechall of Phoenix, who was riding with Capps, and Ken Norton, 3 — were injured.

Schwartz said the pickup hit the Capps vehicle broadside and it was necessary to cut the doors of the sedan away to free Derechall from the wreckage. Both vehicles were demolished.

Officials at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center said late Friday night that some of the victims would be hospitalized, but it was too early to determine conditions. The most seriously injured were the two passengers.

An ISP spokesman said accidents on Magic Valley highways were occurring every few minutes throughout the afternoon, but most did not involve injuries.

Several persons were taken to hospitals in the Mini-Cassia area, however, after a series of accidents and a major pile-up Friday afternoon in the Cottler area of I-84.

An ISP dispatcher said officers still were working in that area at 10 p.m. and had not been able to make reports on the accidents.

A Burley police dispatcher said visibility at 10 p.m. was just about zero, and drivers were going off roads simply because they couldn't see.

I-84 remained closed south of Burley and was expected to be closed throughout the night.

agricultural zone. Hydro plants are allowed without a permit in outdoor recreation zones, he says.

The two land splits were approved without controversy, Taylor said.

They were requested by Wesley L. Self and William Baker, for property three-and-a-half miles south and three miles west of Filer, and by Ruth Turner, for land she owns in Melon Valley east of Sun Trap Ranches.

Zoners OK hydro-plant permit

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission has approved a conditional use permit for a small hydroelectric power plant on Deep Creek north of Buhl.

At its regular monthly meeting Thursday night, the commission also approved two land splits.

The hydro permit was granted to Don Hudson, for a site north of Black Bear Corner, according to acting zoning administrator Lee Taylor.

Taylor says the commission granted the permit on condition that Hudson return land near the project as natural state as possible within a year of the project's completion.

Two people testified in opposition to the permit, he said.

Taylor said the permit was required because the plant is to be located in an agricultural zone. Hydro plants are allowed without a permit in outdoor recreation zones, he says.

The two land splits were approved without controversy, Taylor said.

They were requested by Wesley L. Self and William Baker, for property three-and-a-half miles south and three miles west of Filer, and by Ruth Turner, for land she owns in Melon Valley east of Sun Trap Ranches.

Fairfield District gets ski-trail equipment

FAIRFIELD — The Fairfield Ranger District now has the necessary equipment to maintain its cross-country ski trail, reports Larry Zajane of the district.

The equipment, on loan from the Ketchum Ranger District, includes a track-setter and a roller-packer. It was brought to Fairfield after a ski foundation took over trail maintenance duties from the Forest Service in Ketchum, Zajane says.

He says the Fairfield district "can now set a regular cross-country ski track with the equipment."

There is only one cross-country trail in the area, located on Lawrence Creek, about nine miles north of Fairfield, beginning at the Lawrence Creek corral. The trail makes about a four-mile loop.

Don't let dogs roam in Wendell

WENDELL — City officials have once again — taken action to enforce Wendell's dog leash law.

Thursday night, the City Council agreed that volunteer Claude Strickland should be sworn in as a special city deputy to catch roaming dogs and issue tickets to owners who have don't have licenses for their animals.

It was agreed that Strickland may go "door to door" throughout the city checking for licenses and catching roaming dogs.

Mayor Otto Lemke said the problem is a sensitive issue.

"Don't talk dogs to me," he told the council. "I catch hell for getting them, and I catch hell for not getting them."

But Councilman Floyd Little said that since residents voted to have a leash law, the city should enforce it.

The council further decided to put dog traps on private property, rather than city property, and also to start using a tranquilizer gun again.

Funds

"I think the event was successful. A 21% percent increase in net revenues in one year is excellent improvement."

A phase of the fund-raising drive that has not been completed is the appeal to corporations to help in December. So far, more than half of the $10,000 goal for this facet of the drive has been received from area businesses, Crumrine says.

The agency's appeal to foundations, another component of the drive, has not fared as well.

Proposals for funds were mailed to 17 foundations in Idaho and across the nation, Crumrine says. As of last month, the organization had been rejected by under the foundations.

The problem with appealing to national foundations is that the competition is stiff, Crumrine says. Also, an organization has to spend money to send representatives to meet with foundation officials, and MVRIS does not have the funds to do that, he says.

Because of the poor response this year and last, MVRIS will review its policy of selecting foundations, Crumrine says.

Obituaries

Beatrice Whiting Evans

BURLEY — Beatrice Whiting Evans, 96, of Burley, died Friday morning at Cassia Memorial Hospital.

Born Nov. 26, 1887, in Mapleton, Utah, she attended schools in Mapleton and Slaterville, Utah.

She married John Thomas Evans on June 17, 1903, in Hammond, N.M. Their marriage later was solemnized in the temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Following their marriage, they lived in Utah until 1916, when they moved to Idaho and settled in the Stars Ferry and Pleasant View areas near Burley.

In 1933, they moved to Burley, following Mr. Evans' retirement. He died in 1947.

She was active in the Mormon Church, serving in many different positions.

Surviving are: three sons, Earl Evans and Fred Evans, both of Burley, and Jay Evans of Lake Shoshone; two daughters, Nell Evans and Maye Stanley, both of Burley, and Beth Thompson of Bountiful, Utah; two brothers, Vern Whiting of Provo, Utah, and Jim Whiting of Mapleton, Utah; three sisters, Nettie Thompson and Mary Waters, both of Burley, and Eliza Fickett of Salt Lake City; 12 grandchildren; 26 great-grandchildren; and 11 great-great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be held at 1 p.m. Monday in the Third, Fifth and Seventh Ward Mormon Chapel in Burley, with Bishop Elden L. Wood officiating. Burial will be in Pleasant View Cemetery at Burley.

Friends may call at the Payne Mortuary in Burley on Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. and at the church an hour prior to the funeral on Monday.

Gerald Albert Wilcock

TWIN FALLS — Gerald Albert Wilcock, 55, of Twin Falls, died Friday at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

The funeral will be held Monday at 2 p.m. in the Immanuel Lutheran Church in Twin Falls, with the Rev. Arthur J. Gromer officiating.

White Mortuary of Twin Falls is in charge of arrangements.

The full obituary will appear in Sunday's paper.

Nettie May Kraus

TWIN FALLS — Nettie May Kraus, 88, of Twin Falls and formerly of Paul, died early Friday morning at Hazelde nursing home in Paul.

Born July 22, 1895, in Marshalltown, Iowa, she moved to Paul in 1909. She married George Walter Bryson in Paul on Feb. 19, 1913. He died on June 22, 1958. She then married David Kraus Sr. in Paul in October 1952.

He also suggested that those who decide they must burn trash should get a 55-gallon barrel for burning, and have separate cans for garbage to be collected.

A $100,000 truck is not worth running for a $2 garbage stop, Fager said.

"If it looks like it's been burned, I'm not going to pick it up," he warned.

There's been no shortage of churches in Camas County

Editor's note: A recent article in the Times-News reported incorrectly that there were no churches in Camas County — a statement that was quickly corrected by a Camas County minister, who pointed out there are actually three churches in the area. In fairness to church goers in the county, the paper's Fairfield correspondent was asked to write a history of the churches for the area. This is what he learned.

By MARK JOHNSON
Times-News correspondent

FAIRFIELD — The history of the churches in the Camas Prairie begins with the Soldier Sunday school, which was started about 1833. This group met in a schoolhouse, since a church had not been built yet.

According to an article written in 1914 by the Rev. S.E. Smutz, a former pastor of the Community Methodist Church in Fairfield, the first Methodist services in Soldier were conducted two years later.

Mormon influence also was felt about this time. Missionaries were active in Soldier in the 1830s and 1840s. The Lewiston Tribune of Aug. 2, 1862, in an article on the history of Camas County that there was a Mormon settlement at Fir Grove in 1835.

For the next several years, traveling ministers from Boise visited the area and held services in the various homes and schools scattered around the prairie. But practices continued until 1888, when Edward Pratt, the first resident Methodist minister on Camas Prairie, took over for the itinerant preachers. Pratt, according to Smutz, served for two years and conducted services in homes and schoolhouses.

A church was constructed east of Soldier sometime between 1838 and 1839. This was a Baptist church and was served by a variety of ministers, including Methodists and Episcopalians from Hailey and Shoshone. This church later was "appropriated" by some Fairfield residents, who felt Soldier's demise was imminent, and moved to the spot where the present vocational agriculture classroom stands.

A plot of Fairfield dated October 1920, which was obtained from Tommy Wokersen, shows that the building was used as a Nazarene church for a time.

The multiple denominations were not the only groups active in the area before 1900, however. In 1895, the Rev. Guy Phelps attempted to speak at Soldier on behalf of the Salvation Army, but he was bombarded with rotten eggs. The Wood River Times of Aug. 12, 1895, indicated that many residents later were arrested.

There was, however, one positive result from Phelps' short-lived visit. John Finch was apparently so moved that he closed his saloon and opened a Salvation Army barracks. His devotion lasted only through the winter, however; by early 1896, he had closed the barracks and reopened his saloon.

The Mormons became more noticeable in the area at the turn of the century when, according to information supplied by Chuck and Nancy Lutz Packham, they organized a Sunday school at Fir Grove in 1900. This was followed by the organization of a second Sunday school at Soldier in 1903.

"Prairie" at the turn of the century prompted the building of a second church in Soldier. In the late 1880s, A.C. Reedy and his wife sold two lots to the trustees of the Methodist-Episcopal Church.

The Methodists' conference journal of 1901 indicates this church was built the same year, at a cost of about $1,400. In 1915, the building was moved to Fairfield, where it continued to operate until it was discontinued in 1965.

Records obtained from the Packhams show that Mormons living in Manard constructed a meeting house in which they conducted services in 1906. This was followed by the construction of a larger building, the Manard Hall, in 1911.

In the fall of 1934, the hall was moved to its present location in Fairfield where, in addition to its use for Sunday services, it served as the movie theater for the community for more than 25 years, beginning about 1936.

The areas around Soldier and Fairfield were not the only places where church-building was occurring. A Methodist church was constructed in Hill City, according to Smutz, about 1911. It remained open until the early 1950s. One of the early ministers of this church indicated in a letter written about 1915 that Baptists, Methodists, Nazarenes and Presbyterians were all active on Camas Prairie at that time.

During the years between 1911 and 1923, many of the Mormon families living in Soldier moved to Fairfield. A Sunday school was organized in 1920, followed by the creation of the Fairfield branch in 1921, according to the Packhams' records.

The group met in several locations, including the old Baptist Church, a lodge building north of the old Jones Grocery store and a building purchased by the ward, which was located south and east of the above store.

The Methodist conference journal of 1914 shows that another Sunday school was organized on the Camas Prairie this time at Corral Creek. Records indicate that enrollment was about 50.

According to the Idaho Register of Nov. 3, 1961, the Catholic Church of the Immaculate Conception was constructed in Fairfield in 1919 and deicated the following year.

Prior to the construction of this mission church, mass was conducted by mission priests at the Gibbons' home. After the church was built, priests came from Hailey, Gooding and Shoshone to serve the church. Currently, the church is served by a priest from Gooding.

The Methodist conference journal of 1932 reveals that the Rev. George Ellis of the Community-Methodist Church in Fairfield, formerly the Methodist-Episcopal Church, conducted services in Corral and Hill City, as well as Fairfield. He also apparently held auto services around the area during the late summer, which drew as many as 200 people to the Sunday evening services.

The year 1954 brought a major change to the Community Methodist Church, when the congregation split over a misunderstanding over property ownership. One group remained with the Methodists, and the other began construction on what became the Fairfield-Community Church. This building was completed in 1955, and the first service was held in May of the same year.

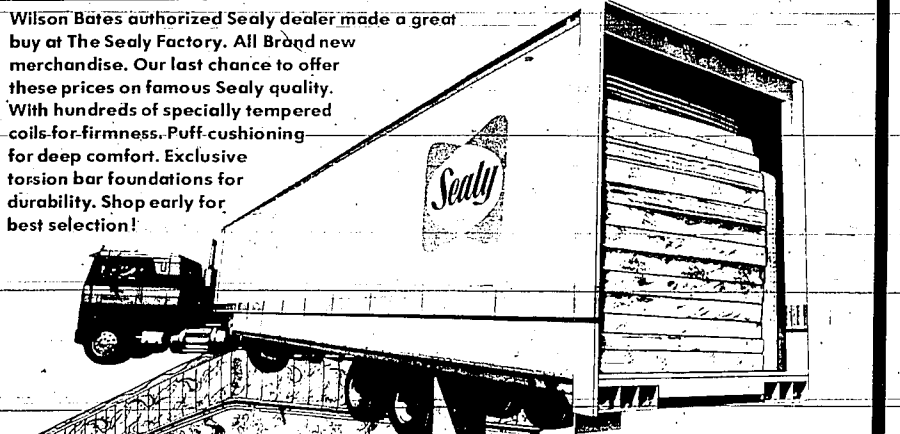

In 1955, the Community-Methodist Church closed its doors, and the building was sold to the Camas County School District, according to Lyla Hill, an architect for the Idaho Methodist Conference.

Today, three churches — Catholic, Community and Mormon — remain on the Camas Prairie.

Rally interrupts stock market decline

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK—The stock market closed its fifth straight week of broad losses with a rally Friday in subdued trading.

Analysts said traders began to buy blue-chip issues on the theory that the market's decline in the last several days had gone to unwarranted extremes.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 7.96 to 1,169.70, but still finished the week with a net loss of 36.33 points. Since Jan. 7, the average has fallen 125.94 points in its worst drop since the start of the bull market in August 1982.

Friday's volume on the New York Stock Exchange slowed to 92.22 million shares from 128.19 million the day before.

International Business Machines was the day's most active issue, up 1 at 110 on turnover of more than 1.6 million shares. IBM shares have been under heavy selling pressure during the market's recent slide.

Senator attacks lobby law

BOISE (AP) — A change in Idaho's lobbying laws is allowing what one legislator calls "curtains of secrecy" to cover money spent by lobbyists on state legislators.

Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, said there aren't enough votes to do anything about it this year; he may try in 1985 if there's a change in the makeup of the Legislature.

The Legislature last year changed the "Sunshine Law" approved by voters in 1974. If a lobbyist spends less than $50 on a lawmaker, individual names don't have to be listed.

Formerly, the legislative advisers had to report names when they spent more than $50 per gathering, not per lawmaker.

According to the secretary of state's office, lobbyists generally are aware of the change in the law and often are not reporting the names of legislators they wine and dine.

"It's a shame to see the curtains of secrecy slowly descending on state government, again," Peavey said Thursday. "It's a subject the (1984) Legislature will not deal with in a responsible manner," he said.

The deadline for lobbyist expense reports for January was Friday. As of mid-afternoon Thursday, about 140 of the 236 registered lobbyists required to file had done so.

Of 22 reports showing expenditures of more than $100, only five listed — apparently unnecessarily — the lawmakers entertained.

Boise Cascade Corp. Vice President J. Kirk Sullivan reported spending $1,181 at a gathering at his home. Attending were 10 lawmakers, including notable ones such as House Speaker Tom Silvers, R-Twin Falls; seven of their wives; and eight non-legislators. The total expenditure averaged less than $50 per person.

The 1983 bill amending the law was sponsored by Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, on the basis that the required reports sometimes made it appear that much more was being spent on lawmakers than actually was spent.

She contended that lobbyists were skirting the rule requiring reports on gatherings costing more than $50 by taking out the lawmakers "one on one" and keeping bills down.

Tax evaders subject of bill

BOISE (AP) — A measure that proponents say would help the state track down people who haven't filed Idaho tax returns was forwarded by a legislative committee Friday.

The proposal allowing the State Tax Commission and the Idaho Department of Employment to swap records was sent to the House floor with a recommendation for passage.

The legislation would allow Employment Department records, including employers' reports of wages paid, to be matched with tax returns on file. The periodic reports received by the Employment Department list the names of workers and how much they earned.

IEA denies undermining bill

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Education Association President Terry Haggard Friday denied the IEA wants to kill a proposed education reform bill by trying to force the Senate to consider amending the measure.

But Haggard said the teacher union does want to amend the bill in an act which a proponent says will cause the bill to fail in the Senate.

The bill would appropriate $20.3 million to raise the base pay for teachers and also create a career ladder plan that would allow teachers to earn extra money by taking on responsibilities outside their normal teaching duties.

Haggard commented on the bill during a news conference at which he unveiled an IEA proposal for reforming Idaho's public schools.

The education reform bill has passed the House and awaits Senate consideration.

"We are seeking changes, but I don't think that can be construed as trying to kill the bill," Haggard said. "We are not trying to kill the bill."

House Minority Leader Mel Hammond, meanwhile, accused the Republican majority of holding hostage a proposed 7 percent cost-of-living raise for teachers until it sees what the Senate does with the reform measure. The Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee has scheduled a hearing next week on the bill.

IEA Executive Director Don Rolfe said Thursday that the IEA will lobby the committee to send the bill to the Senate floor for amendment.

Among the changes being sought, Rolfe said, is a stipulation in the bill that the career ladder provisions be exempt from collective bargaining. The IEA is bargaining agent for Idaho's school teachers.

Rolfe said the IEA also is concerned that the bill may open the door for some school boards to try integrating the career ladder program with regular teacher salary schedules; and thus removing the entire pay issue from the negotiation process.

Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, co-chairman of the committee that drafted the measure, said it is unlikely to pass if senators start taking it apart on the floor for amendments. The bill has the best chance for survival, he said, if it goes to the floor intact.

Panel rejects tax-credit measure

BOISE (AP) — A bill promoted as a way to strengthen education funding by boosting tax credits for gifts to colleges and private schools has been rejected narrowly by a legislative committee.

The House Revenue and Taxation Committee Friday voted 10-8 against a bill calling for a 10-fold increase in tax credit for contributions to educational institutions.

Critics said the bill sponsored by Rep. James Lucas, R-Moscow, would erode the tax base.

But Lucas said funding for education in Idaho is in a mess that can't continue.

The bill would have allowed individuals contributing to education a $500 tax credit instead of the current $50. Couples would qualify for a $1,000 credit instead of $100, and the credit for corporations would jump to $5,000 from $500.

"There were a lot of mixed feelings," Lucas said after the committee voted. "I don't know if there's a way we can resurrect this (bill)."

Lucas said he was surprised by the vote because he talked to committee members a day earlier and believed he had enough support to get the bill advanced to the full House.

Bill targets victims of crime

BOISE (AP) — Crime victims could seek compensation from the state under legislation a northern Idaho senator is introducing because he feels victims are often "left in the lurch."

The Senate Judiciary and Rules Committee Friday agreed to introduce the legislation, brought by Sen. Vern Lannen, D-Pinchurst.

"This is the least the state of Idaho can do for victims," Lannen said. "We coddle the criminals. If a guy robs you, beats you up, and he doesn't have any money, we'll pay for his defense. And if somehow he's injured, we'll take him to the hospital and pay his bills," he added.

The legislation, modeled after a 1978 Montana law, would assist crime victims who suffer bodily injury, or the survivors of victims who are killed, as the result of a crime.

A special compensation fund would be administered by the state Industrial Commission.

Matheson says he won't seek third term

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gov. Scott Matheson, a popular Democrat in a Republican state, put a surprising end to months of speculation about his political future Friday by announcing he won't seek re-election to a third term as Utah's chief executive. Matheson, the only Democrat holding statewide office in Utah, said eight years in office should be enough time for a politician to accomplish most of his goals.

"I may not have enough fire in the belly for another four years," he said. He said that in the past few months there has been great pressure on him to run for re-election, with people telling him "nobody else can do the job."

"I liked the compliment so much I was afraid I'd start to believe it," Matheson said. "But" he said "that when he entered his first gubernatorial campaign eight years ago, he was convinced many other competent citizens could do the job, and he hadn't changed his mind. And so I am stepping back not necessarily from public life or public service, but from another term as governor of this state," he said. Matheson refused to speculate on who Democrats might choose as a nominee in the November election, saying simply, "It's wide open; anybody can run."

"A governor knows the difference between running a government and leading the state. The difference is purpose. I will let you and history judge whether I have achieved that purpose," he told a University of Utah audience during an emotion-filled speech. The 55-year-old Matheson, who never had sought public office until his election to the governor's chair in 1976, suffered a mild heart attack last year and party sources had said the governor's wife, Norma, did not want him to seek a third term. Matheson paused momentarily to control his emotions when he spoke of his wife and the part she had played in all his political decisions.

Diagnosis of shock premature

BOISE (AP) — A Food and Drug Administration official says a regional FDA official was premature in announcing that a case of toxic shock was diagnosed in a Boise woman who used a contraceptive sponge.

The FDA's gentle said the diagnosis was determined this week. The name of the 26-year-old woman, who has recovered, has not been released.

The sponge she used, which is called Today, is manufactured by VLI Corp. of Irvine, Calif. The company said there has not been a confirmed link between use of the sponge and toxic shock syndrome.

Company spokeswoman Debra Gaynor also said on Friday that VLI Corp. contends information about the Boise woman's suspected problem should not have been released by the FDA pending confirmation.

Susan O'Connell of the FDA in Washington said the possibility of toxic shock is being investigated, but a diagnosis must be made by the National Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., and reviewed by the FDA.

She estimated it will take a week for the CDC to study the case and announce a diagnosis.

Ellen Miller, a consumer affairs specialist with the FDA in Seattle, said the Boise woman had been using the sponge shortly before she became ill. Ms. Miller said that Dr. David Johnson, an FDA regional medical officer, was in Boise this week and determined the illness was toxic shock syndrome. The syndrome, which can be fatal, has been linked to use of certain tampons during the past few years. "Toxic shock syndrome is a really tough disease to diagnose," Ms. Gaynor said. "It mimics other diseases."

She said the company conducted tests of the sponge was marketed that showed the contraceptive's permide and acids would not support the growth of bacteria linked to toxic shock.

Ms. Gaynor said several women who have contracted toxic shock syndrome after using the sponge used it incorrectly. She also said the company believes occurrence of the disease in sponge users was coincidental.

Boise bridge finally set

BOISE (AP) — After 36 years of planning, protests and delays, the Ada County Highway District expects to begin construction this fall a new bridge spanning the Boise River. It's to connect Garden City with downtown Boise. The $215 million project will link Chinden Boulevard and State Street via a four-lane bridge and a road passing just west of Veterans Memorial State Park.

Construction is to begin in October, according to Chuck Smith, AGHD right-of-way specialist. The project has been discussed since 1947, Smith said. Right-of-way acquisitions, environmental studies and disagreements over the route delayed the project. Final review still is needed from three jurisdictions in which the bridge would be built — Boise, Garden City and Ada County. The Boise City Planning and Zoning Commission gave its unanimous blessing to the project earlier this week. Hearings have not yet been set by Garden City or Ada County.

North Idaho deals CSI a loss via overtime

COEUR D'ALENE — Chris Goldstein converted a three-point play of a cripple and North Idaho added three more free throws in the closing seconds of overtime Friday night to beat College of Southern Idaho 72-68.

The defeat, in which CSI had two closing shots at the end of regulation, put the Region 18 basketball chase back to even with CSI, North Idaho and Ricks all with one loss apiece — all of them on the away court. Ricks still faces a trip to North Idaho while CSI must visit Ricks. North Idaho must return to CSI — if one of those teams happens to get a road break-through, it very probably will wind up hosting the regional tournament next month. If it ends up tied, Ricks will get the nod.

In the earlier women's contest, North Idaho edged the Eagle women 66-59 to take over the lead in their Region 18 race. No other details were available at press time.

CSI won this loss to four turnovers in the extra session, including the poor pass that Goldstein picked off and converted into the three-point lead.

The Eagles, staided throughout by the 19-point effort and rebounding of Ralph Barreras, had a chance to break away seven minutes into the second half when, after trailing 32-31 at the turn, they broke out to a 48-42. But they didn't score again until the Cardinals were back to within a point.

The teams struggled through several ties and four lead changes until Larry Brown gave CSI a 58-56 lead with one free throw. Tim Atwood immediately pulled CSI back to even. Tim Atwood's follow shot set the regulation tie 2-03 from the end of the game.

CSI then held it for the final shot. Fred Emerson took it, the ball bouncing to a Cardinal, but Bob Shropshire stole it back and got off another shot that wouldn't go.

"The Eagles' was started immediately in the overtime when they drew the ball away. Atwood scored for North Idaho but Larry Brown nullified it with a 16-footer. Atwood regained the lead with two free throws and CSI survived a turnover when it got the ball back and Dewey Haley scored.

After North Idaho missed a free throw, Brown's charity bounced away but Shropshire picked up the rebound to keep the ball with the Eagles. But then came the pass that Goldstein picked off to make it 69-66 with 1:16 remaining.

Derrick Hopkins pulled CSI to within one with 43 seconds left before Goldstein collected one of two free throws, keeping CSI hopes alive for a second tie.

But that died on the final turnover, leading to a pair of closing clarities by Neal Stevens.

"North Idaho is an excellent ball club. I couldn't believe how big they were," said Coach Fred Trendle afterward. "Six guys taller than our tallest and nine deep on the bench. We played awfully good. Oh, yeah, we had some inopportune turnovers and we couldn't get a call in the late going. But it's like I told the kids, you played your best, you played your hearts out, you did everything you could do but you got beat. You can walk out of here with your heads up."

CSI led through much of the early going but never by more than four. North Idaho took the lead at 16-14 for the first time on an Atwood follow with Brown tying it up immediately. But at that point, CSI hit a foul, missing, scoring Jull, hitting, which Goldstein and Stevens took the Cardinals to a six-point lead. The teams traded four field goals before Ralph Barreras came up with seven points that pulled CSI to within one at intermission.

Shropshire and Haley sent the Eagles ahead as the second half opened and after another succession of ties, CSI built up that 48-42 lead, only to see it melt away on six quick North Idaho points.

Bonneville upends Spartans

By RON BENNETT
Special to The Times-News

IDAHO FALLS — Bonneville built an early lead and survived two Minico comebacks here Friday night to upset the fifth-ranked Spartans 73-70 in the "Gem State" Conference boys' basketball.

The victory boosted the up-and-down Bees' record to 8-10 for the season, 6-6 in conference, while Minico dropped to 13-4 and 9-3.

Minico's loss, along with Twin Falls over Skyline, severely damaged the Spartans' shot at a conference title. Minico has two games remaining, while Twin Falls — with just one league setback — has three left.

"I'm proud of these kids for hanging in there against a very fine team," said Bonneville Coach Mike Jorgensen. "They were as poised as I've seen them all year."

The Spartans were hampered early in the game when starting guard Carl Bailey suffered a foot injury and was taken from the game.

Minico Coach Craig Dexter attributed much of the loss to the Bailey injury.

"We lost a key player when Bailey went out. He's been averaging 13 points a game. That about accounts for the difference in the game," he said.

Senior center Scott Seadall was the leading player for the Bees, scoring 22 points — including two key free throws with 18 seconds left in the game — and pulling down a game-high 22 rebounds. Minico's 6-foot-6 senior center Kent Mackenzie paced the Spartans with 20 points and eight rebounds, followed by junior Brad Croft's 19 points and seven rebounds. Senior Greg Schow had 11.

The Spartans came out hot in the third quarter, climbing from a 40-32 deficit to a 40-40 tie in just over two minutes. Croft hit the two foul shots that tied the game with 5:30 remaining in the quarter. Minico was able to stay with the Bees for a few minutes, tying the score twice, but the Bees never gave up the lead.

With the lead in the fourth quarter, Bonneville seemed to have the victory in hand. But Mackenzie rather charged late in the game. With less than a minute remaining, Schow sank a 22-footer for three points, pulling Minico within two points at 66-64.

In the end, Minico was forced to foul. Seadall scored 13 points and the points the Bees needed to win from the free throw line.

Jerome places men in finals

Moore positions for title match

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

POCAHELLO — Faron Moore and the Jerome Tigers have opportunities to achieve double glory tonight.

Moore, the No. 1 seeded heavyweight, moved into position to claim his second straight individual title by pinning Sugar Salem's Tim Ard in 4:55 during Friday night's semifinals of the Idaho State Wrestling Tournament.

Jerome, meanwhile, placed two men in the finals — 112-pounder Robert Egbert and 167-pound Ryan Parton. Egbert downed Rigby's Chris Pratt 2-2 in the 138-pound match. Salem, River's Tate Clement threw said. "He just wore that kid out."

Jerome's other top seed, 126-pound Kevin Chapman, lost to Snake River's Joel Blackburn 15-4. Blackburn took a quick first-round lead and continued to increase it.

Chapman had provided Buhl's only state championship year before transferring to Jerome but the Indians' title hopes remain alive in Farnes. Farnes' brother, "Wes" Seafright, challenged by Hallowback, running on an 8-0 lead before his opponent could score.

Farnes' brother Todd failed in his semifinal bid, losing to No. 1 seeded Harvey's Mickey Murkinco, Wallace, 9-2.

Buhl 185-pounder Barr Farnes and DeLo 132-pounder Todd Webb also reached the finals. Farnes whipped Salmon's Brad Hallowback 9-1 while Webb dethroned Homedale's Todd Hill 13-8.

Only 10 Magie Valley wrestlers of the 63 entering Friday afternoon's consolation round advanced to today's semifinals. Those will be held at Idaho State's Reed gymnasium at noon with the consolation finals set for 2:15 p.m. The championship finals will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Two of Webb's teammates, 138-pound Bryce Johnson and 167-pound Brett Kelsey, couldn't join him in the finals but DeLo Coach Jay Darrington left the gym pleased anyway.

"I feel good," he said. "The kid Bart wrestled well and Bryce wrestled well. After jumping to a 5-0 first-round lead, Webb faltered a little in the second, his cushion shrinking to 8-5."

The top-seeded Hornet senior fell into trouble early in the final period as Hill buried him on a five-second near-fall to forge a tie. But Webb finished strong, getting a reversal and near-fall.

Johnson, meanwhile, appeared over-matched by Teton's Stacey Beard, the No. 2 seed who gained an easy 13-1 conquest.

Kelsey, facing the top-seeded Wright Hill Sugar-Salem, appeared primed an upset when he took a 5-1 first-round lead. However, Noel closed the gap and went ahead 7-5 in the second period on a near-fall. He grew stronger there.

"Moore's victory wasn't a quiet one. In the third round, an official gave a penalty-point to Ard, claiming Moore was stalling.

This was the same referee who officiated at 4-3 decision for Parma's Quinton Hedges over Filer's James Schroeder in the consolation quarterfinals, which ended with Schroeder rallying. Filer Coach Steve Parr thought then that Schroeder was stalling. After what happened to Moore, Parr was nothing short of livid.

"He called Faron for stalling when the bottom kid (Ard) was doing absolutely nothing. He called it because Faron's big. He's got something against a big kid. ... He did Faron a favor. He got mad and stuck the guy."

Glenn Ferry 185-pound Kelly Riggs wasn't as successful, getting pinned by No. 1 seed Shawn Roberts, Sugar-Salem, in one.

Team scores were not available when the Times-News went to press."

Burley upsets No. 1 Rigby

BURLEY — Greg Boyd scored 28 points here Friday night to pace Burley to a 55-53 Cross State Conference victory over the top-ranked Rigby Trojans.

The loss, only the second of the season in 18 games for the two-time defending state champion Trojans, avenged a 77-54 defeat in Rigby on Jan. 28.

"We survived an atrocious shooting night," said Burley Coach Gary Swan, whose team improved its season record to 12-7 with the win. "We were 5-for-22 (from the field) in the second half and 10-for-22 in the first. Boyd was my only player who had more than four field goals."

The Trojans, who were playing without 6-foot-8 center Todd Preston, suffered badly at the hands of Burley's Ryan Hull under the basket until the 6-4 junior fouled out late in the game. The two teams ended up even on the boards with 23 rebounds apiece.

"We played mostly man-to-man defense this time, trying to keep the pressure on them because they didn't have that much inside," said Swan. "They still played us tough. They're a good team."

After Burley surged to a 13-8 first-quarter lead and coasted to an eight-point advantage at intermission, the Trojans fought back to tie the game behind the shooting of forward Troy Shippen and guard Preston Berry. Behind a few of Boyd's three-point goals, however, Burley went back up by nine points near the end of the game and held off a late surry by the Trojans.

Berry ended the evening with 20 points, while Shippen picked up 16 before both players fouled out late in the game. Hull scored 11 points for the Trojans and teammate Dan Ralphs chipped in 10.

"This was an important win for us going into the last week of the season and into the district tournament," said Swan. "We play Jerome Friday night in the final game of the season, and their loss (58-47) to Wood River tonight is going to make that game that much bigger."

Olympic panel: Torch coming to Magic Valley

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — The Olympic torch is coming to the Magic Valley next summer.

"That's the word from the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, which Friday informed sponsors of the effort to bring the torch through southern Idaho en route to the Summer Olympics that the relay conveying the flame to Los Angeles will pass through southern Idaho.

"We're excited about it," said Mary-Lee Roberts of Twin Falls, who raised $3,000 to bring the torch here. "It looks right now as if it will be here on June 29 or June 30, which is a Saturday. They've left it up to us to organize the kind of ceremony we want."

Roberts and Rick Haberman of Jerome were two or three Idahoans to raise the requisite $3,000 in order for their communities to be considered as stops on the route of the torch, which will carry the Olympic flame from New York City to Los Angeles. Originally, the flame had been scheduled to pass through all 50 states, but the group organizing the relay dialed back its plans last month when contributions from across the country failed to meet their expectations.

As a result, the torch — which will be carried in part by donors who have anted up the $3,000 and in part by a team of volunteers from American Telephone & Telegraph — will pass through only 35 or 40 states, including Idaho.

Roberts said the relay will enter the state from Utah via Interstate 84 and travel to Twin Falls, a route which would take it through Jerome County. It is unclear where the route will take it into the city of Jerome.

Roberts said she does not know yet where the torch will go from here, but Portland, Ore., and Seattle are likely to be its next stops.

Roberts began raising the money last summer when she first heard about the relay, whose proceeds — less administrative expenses — will go to local groups working with youth. She reached the $3,000 figure shortly before Christmas. Haberman, who began his fund-raising later, picked up most of his funds through a holiday basketball tournament he organized. He reached the $3,000 just before New Year's Day.

"The entire torch relay drive has been plagued with problems both financial and political since its beginning last summer. First the route was curtailed — it will completely miss the states of Montana and North and South Dakota, for example — and then the project was called into question by members of the International Olympic Committee. Some member of the IOC frowned upon the fact that the money was earmarked for non-Olympic purposes, but finally agreed last week to let the project proceed.

The relay's organizers are still collecting pledges, however, and Roberts said Friday she hopes to raise more money before the torch gets here.

The Olympic torch, which will be lighted from the permanent Olympic flame housed near Mount Olympus in Greece, will be flown to New York City and then conveyed by relay to Los Angeles, a route that is expected to cover between 7,000 and 8,000 miles, by latest estimates. The LAOC will release the exact route next week.

Wood River nips Jerome

JEROME — The early scoring of Dan Karst and a late flourish by Wood River in the final quarter lifted the Wood River Wolverines past the Jerome Tigers 58-47 Friday night.

Karst, who rang in four three-pointers, scored 12 of his 20 points in the first half, when the Wolverines were scrambling to hold onto a two-point lead. But Wood River, started pulling away a little in the third quarter, and took a nine-point lead into the final quarter.

Olympics continue amid troublesome snow

Soviet speed skater Sergei Fokichev starts gold-medal race

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia — While Soviet athletes mourned the death of their leader, the Winter Olympics went on Friday, with a graceful British couple dancing on ice in a record-setting performance and, ironically, snow creating chaos.

Following the announcement that Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov had died, the International Olympic Committee sent condolences to the Soviet sports minister, then declared that the Olympics should continue uninterrupted. A memorial service was held Friday night at the Olympic village.

Meanwhile, two Soviet cross-country skiers won the gold and silver medals in the men's 30-kilometer race, two East Germans won gold and silver in the women's 500-meter speed skating event, while the men's 500 went to a rising Soviet star.

They have yet to win gold, but it was a British couple from Nottingham, England, who dazzled in the compulsory ice dance.

Jayne Torvill and Christopher Dean, a good bet to win gold, skated off with three perfect 6.0s in one segment of their compulsory program. They are the first couple ever to get perfect 6.0s in compulsory dance at an international event.

"They're thrilled to bits," Betty Callaway, their coach, said. "They should be. They are the first ever to get 6.0s."

In the pair's figure skating short program, which counts for 20 percent of the two-part event, Kitty and Peter Carruthers, a brother-sister pair from Haverford, Pa., tied for second place with Soviets Larissa Selezneva and Oleg Makarov.

Soviets Elena Valova and Oleg Vassilev were in first place. The second part of the program, the free-style, will be held Sunday night.

Heavy snow again interrupted downhill events, and once again it meant a delay in Californian Bill Johnson's quest for a gold medal in the men's downhill.

The men's downhill on Mount Bjelasnica was postponed until Sunday, while the women's downhill on the much calmer Mount Jahorina was postponed from Saturday until Monday.

Karin Enko, who won the gold medal Thursday in the 1,500-meter speed skating, said she might try for four gold medals here, had to settle for a silver in the 500-event Friday. Her teammate Christa Rothenburger, the world record holder, took the gold in 41.02 seconds, a new Olympic record.

Sergei Fokichev, 22, of the Soviet Union, won the gold medal in the men's 500 speed skating, Yoshinori Kitazawa of Japan took the silver, while Gaetan Boucher of Canada won the bronze.

Soviet Nikolaj Zimintov, who has battled illness and injury since Lake Placid where he won three gold medals, took his fourth gold medal in the 30-kilometer cross-country race, just 27 seconds better than his teammate, Alexander Zavinolov.

Sweden's Gunde Svare won the bronze. Bill Koch, 28, of Eugene, Ore., the 1976 silver medalist who suffered from an asthma-like condition last week, finished 21st but said he was satisfied.

"It's the effort that counts more than the gold medal," he said. "I feel like a winner."

Dan Simoneau, also of Eugene, finished 29th. Jim Gaslauer, of Brattleboro, Vt., was 36th and Kevin Brochman, of Stillwater, Minn., was 48th in the 72-man field.

In huge, the East Germans continued their strong hold on the top spots in women's competition after the second runs. Steffi Martin, a commercial clerk, held onto first place with a run of 41.83 seconds and topped the standings.

Torsten Guerlitzer, a last-minute addition to the East German team, led the men's standings.

The East Germans also dominated the first two of four two-man bobsled runs. Wolfgang Hoppe, a 25-year-old soldier, and his teammate Dietmar Schauerhammer, put their East German sled in first place after the first two runs Friday. The medals will be awarded after the final two runs Saturday.

News of Andropov's death swept through the Winter Olympic city about noon and immediately raised the question of whether the Games would be officially interrupted.

The only time an Olympics game has been formally halted or postponed was in Munich in 1972, when 11 Israeli athletes and coaches were killed in a terrorist attack. Competition was suspended for one day.

Under Yugoslav law, one day of mourning is held for the death of a prominent foreign leader. Yugoslav officials had not made a decision when to observe this day, but past practice has been to wait until the day of the funeral.

About 200 athletes and Russian-officials' memorial honoring the Communist Party chief.

Several wore red and black ribbons on their team uniforms, but none had black arm bands — a usual sign of mourning in the Soviet Union.

Andropov was eulogized by Soviet hockey goalie Vladislav Tretjak, speed skater Natalia Polesueva, luger racer Sergel Danilin and Soviet sports committee chairman Maral Gramov.

The service was the first official sign of mourning among the Soviet athletes — some of whom were not informed about Andropov's death until after they completed afternoon competitions.

The U.S. Olympic committee also sent its condolences to the Soviet delegation at the Winter Olympics.

Bullets defeat Lakers, 96-93

Eight-game win streak broken

By The Associated Press

Frank Johnson slapped the ball away from Earvin "Magic" Johnson as Los Angeles tried to set up a game-winning shot and Rick Mahorn scored after the turnover for Washington with two seconds left, as the Bullets defeated the Los Angeles Lakers 96-93 in a National Basketball Association game Friday night.

The defeat snapped an eight-game winning streak for the Lakers, who overcame an early 19-point deficit and then blew a 10-point lead in the second half. Washington has won six of its last eight games, the last three in a row.

Los Angeles took a 93-92 lead on a basket by James "Worthy" with 45 seconds remaining in the game, on the 13th assist by Earvin Johnson.

A driving layup by Ricky Sobers put the Bullets back on top 94-93 with 16 seconds left. Mahorn closed out the scoring after picking up a loose ball on the turnover.

Washington's Jeff Ruland scored nine of his 18 points in the fourth quarter and recorded a "triple double" by also grabbing 14 rebounds and handing off 10 assists. Sobers finished with 16 points, and Tom McMillen also had 16 in a reserve role.

Jamaal Wilkes scored 21 points for the Lakers, while Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 14 and Johnson 13. Boston 114, Houston 101.

In Boston, Kevin McHale scored 30 points and Robert Parish added 23 Friday night as the Boston Celtics beat the Houston Rockets. Gerald Henderson contributed 18 points while Larry Bird added 17, while grabbing 14 rebounds and handing out 12 assists as the Celtics spoiled the first Boston Garden appearance of Celtics coach Bill Fitch since he quit as Boston coach last May. Detroit 134, Golden State 116.

In Pontiac, Mich., Bill Laimbeer scored 28 points and grabbed 16 rebounds to power the Detroit Pistons to a triumph over the Golden State Warriors. The visitors, which trailed by as many as 19 points early in the third quarter, pulled to within eight points of the Pistons with 2:03 remaining in the period.

Chicago 100, Philadelphia 91. In Philadelphia, Orlando Woolridge scored 25 points and Quintin Dailey 23 as the Chicago Bulls pulled away in the fourth quarter to beat the Philadelphia 76ers.

David Greenwood collected 18 points and 17 rebounds while Ennis Whalley contributed 13 points and eight assists for the winners.

Cleveland 95, Seattle 90. In Richfield, Ohio, John Bagley and Cliff Robinson each scored 20 points to lead the Cleveland Cavaliers to their fifth victory in the last six games, a decision over the Seattle SuperSonics. Cleveland led 73-63 entering the final quarter. A pair of foul shots by Seattle's Gordon Mc-Cray pulled the Sonics within 79-78 with eight minutes remaining.

Dallas 115, Kansas City 96. In Dallas, Mark Aguirre scored 20 of his game-high 30 points in the first half as the Dallas Mavericks kept a 12-point lead on the way to a win over the Kansas City Kings. The Kings, who trailed 67-50 late in the second quarter, pulled within eight points in the fourth quarter but reserve forward Dale Ellis hit two straight baskets to put Dallas up 94-92 with 9:53 to play.

In late games, it was San Antonio at Milwaukee, New York at Atlanta, at San Diego and Denver at Portland.

Player signs for millions

NEW YORK (AP) — Keith Hernandez, the National League's Gold Glove winner at first base the last six years and a one-time NL Most Valuable Player, became one of baseball's highest paid players Friday when he signed a five-year contract worth $8.4 million with the New York Mets.

The package, which puts Hernandez second to George Foster on the Mets payroll, calls for a guaranteed $5 million through 1989 and $3.4 million in deferred payments. It also includes a no-trade provision for 1984 and 1985 and a limited no-trade clause in the years after that.

"I admit that I was upset when I first came here," said the 30-year-old Hernandez, who was traded to the Mets by St. Louis last June 15 for pitcher Neil Allen and Rick Ombrey. "I didn't know I wanted to stay a Met. But at the end of last season, I noticed a change in attitude. The guys were really pulling together and the good clubs had to play hard to beat us."

Hernandez, who could have become a free agent after the 1984 season, hit .297 with 12 homers and 63 runs batted in last season. For the Mets, he batted .306 with nine homers and 37 RBIs, hitting safely in 63 of 95 games and never going more than three games without a hit.

His lifetime average is .299. "The Mets made a good deal and the Cardinals made a very bad one," he said.

In addition to the flat salary, Hernandez's contract includes incentive bonuses of $100,000 should he be named National League's Most Valuable Player, an honor he shared with Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell in 1979; $100,000 for MVP in the World Series, and $50,000 for second or third in the voting for MVP.

The signing followed a month of negotiations with Hernandez, who had said that if he hadn't signed by the start of spring training, he wouldn't sign during the season.

Judge says Sims is a Lion

By MARTI AHERN
The Associated Press

DETROIT — A federal judge ruled Friday that running back Billy Sims must play with the National Football League's Detroit Lions rather than the Houston Gamblers of the United States Football League.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Robert F. DeMascio came a week after final arguments in a lawsuit filed by Sims against the Gamblers.

Sims had signed a $3.5 million contract with the Gamblers last July 1 but then the contract after signing a $4.5 million deal with the Lions late last year.

Sims argued in the suit that his former agent and co-owner of the Gamblers, Jerry Argovitz, had misrepresented him in negotiations with the Lions and withheld information, prompting him to sign with Houston.

"I was being realistic about it," Sims said when he was contacted at his home in Hooks, Texas, Friday night. "I really didn't know how it would go, but I was prepared to go with it either way. I'm just glad it's over."

He said it would have been difficult to play his best for the Gamblers.

"(But) being an athlete I would have done the best I could. I wouldn't go out and embarrass myself. "I wanted to stay in Detroit, because that's where I started and I've had some pretty good years there. There's just so much more available to achieve in the NFL," Sims added. "The bottom line is me getting back out there, playing and scoring touchdowns. I won my case, and I was right and I don't have anything else to prove. Now I can get back to play like I am capable of without having all this on my mind."

"We're delighted Judge DeMascio has ruled in favor of Billy Sims and the Lions. We are especially happy for the local football fans," said Lions General Manager Russ Thomas.

"It is also heartening to see a legal ruling address itself to the responsibility of a player's agent in football. With Billy we are looking forward to an outstanding 1984 season."

The Lions' star and 1978 Heisman Trophy winner signed contracts with both teams last year.

Sims argued in the suit that his former agent and co-owner of the Gamblers, Jerry Argovitz, had misrepresented him in negotiations with the Lions and withheld information, prompting him to sign with Houston.

An unidentified spokesman at the Gamblers' offices in Houston said Argovitz was in a meeting with club owners and did not immediately have any comment.

In the decision DeMascio said: "The careless fashion in which Argovitz went about ascertaining the highest price for Sims' service convinces us of the wisdom of the maxim, 'No man can faithfully serve two masters,' whose interests are in conflict."

"There was significant financial difference between the USFL and the NFL not only in terms of the relative financial stability of the leagues, but also in terms of the fringe benefits available to Sims," DeMascio added in the 20-page opinion.

The judge also said, "Argovitz was not encouraging a bidding war that could have advantageous results for Sims."

Sims had signed a five-year, $3.5 million contract with the Gamblers on July 1 and an undated agreement with the USFL expansion team in November. But on Dec. 16, he signed a five-year pact worth $4.5 million with the Lions.

The Gamblers argued during the trial, which ended Feb. 3, that their contract is valid and that they fairly won the right to Sims' services.

But Sims' attorney, Elbert Hatchett, accused Argovitz of misrepresentation and the agent contended to represent the star running back even after Argovitz became a co-owner of the Gamblers in May.

U.S. hockey losses disappoint viewers

Olympics turning bad for ABC

By HAL BOCK
The Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia — The 1984 Winter Olympics, with one top event delayed by weather and two losses by the U.S. hockey team, have been a ratings washout so far for the American Broadcasting Co., which paid $21.5 million for the rights to these Games.

Also missing so far is a standout individual performer such as Eric Heiden and his five speedskating gold medals provided in 1980.

Bad weather forced postponement for two straight days of the men's downhill ski race, one of the glamour events of the Games. And the American hockey team, whose unexpected dash to the gold medal four years ago at Lake Placid signaled a ratings bonanza for the network, has seen all but eliminated from medal contention with two straight losses.

When high winds and poor visibility forced the first postponement of the downhill on Thursday, ABC cut one hour of its scheduled three hours of Olympic coverage, substituting a special edition of the news and public affairs program

"20-20" in the 10 p.m. EST slot.

"With the postponement of downhill races, there was not enough solid material for an additional hour and we felt our viewers would be better served by the programming we chose," Anthony Thomopoulos, president of the ABC Broadcast Group, said. "We may consider increasing our prime time coverage on another night."

According to rating figures released by the A.C. Nielsen Co., ABC finished third in the national ratings Tuesday night with a rating of 11.6 and an average share of 16 for three hours of prime time coverage. The ratings measure the percentage of TV homes watching a show. A share represents the percentage of sets tuned to a particular broadcast.

ABC's opening Olympic show was dominated by taped coverage of Canada's 4-2 upset of the American hockey team, a game played at 7:30 in the morning EST and the result of which was widely known in the United States well before the broadcast.

Four years ago, when the Games were covered live from Lake Placid, the opening night's hockey game drew 20.5 rating and a 31 share. The change represents a 43 percent drop.

Ratings improved slightly Wednesday night when ABC showed the opening ceremony. But the combination of the downhill postponement and the American hockey team's 4-1 loss to Czechoslovakia put another damper on Thursday's show.

Thursday showed ABC with ratings between 13.6 and 18.4 and an audience share between 20 and 27 and trailing NBC and CBS which offered standard prime time programming such as "The Muppet P.T." and "Hill Street Blues."

Although the weather again deprived ABC of one of the Games' prime events with the downhill postponement on Friday, bobsled, luger, cross-country skiing and figure skating competition was held as scheduled, providing the network with sufficient events for full programming.

However, the death of Soviet leader Yuri Andropov complicated the situation and it was not decided at midnight whether some Olympic programming might be pre-empted again.

THE ACES

BOBBY WOLFF

"He was a bold man that first ate an oyster."
Jonathan Swift.

"I couldn't find the bold play that would find my 'Shaky game,'" abridged South. "There was nothing bold about it," offered North. "You just didn't give the hand enough thought." Dummy's club ace and trump was led to South's ace. South muttered something about bad breaks when West discarded, but it was too late to recover. With an entry back to his dummy, South was sure to lose a trick in every suit.

"How should I have known to risk a finesse in trumps?" asked South. "It was the only way to make 10 tricks."

"There was no risk in taking the trump finesse," explained North. Had the trump finesse lost, dummy's trump eight would have become a sure entry. In that case, there would have been plenty of time to knock out East's heart ace, and dummy's heart king would have provided your tenth trick."

"Why is it that dummys always seem to see the solu-
